Cool Copper Projects

Warm metallic hues are easy to love but often pricey. When you create the look with hardware and crafts store supplies instead of the real thing, it will hardly cost a pretty (copper) penny.

Succulents and artwork look at home on a copper-front shelf. Basic brackets become lovely accents when treated with metallic spray paint. Apply three light coats for a thorough, durable finish-and remember to spray all screwheads, too.

Foiled Again

A rugged tree slice gets a brilliant makeover when layered with copper leaf. We generously applied gilding adhesive and copper sheets to the flat surface until we had consistent coverage and shine. For an aged effect, apply fewer metal sheets and let some wood grain show.

Stylish Stitches

Create this sweet botanical design starting with a plain cream-colored pillow. Remove the stuffing, and use metallic gold and copper embroidery floss to stitch a leafy or floral design. Then use fabric-friendly copper paint to add a touch more detail. Restuff and enjoy!

A stylish, industrial pencil holder makes for a clutter-free desk. Set three large copper pipe couplings upright on plastic sheeting. Prepare a concrete mixture, then pour the concrete into each of the large couplings. Cut out small circles from plastic sheeting and wrap one end of the small copper couplings so they don't fill with concrete as you insert them into the wet mixture. Follow manufacturer's instructions for drying time before use.

DIY Copper Lampshade

With a quick stop by the hardware store, you'll have everything you need for this stylish DIY project.

Throw pillows are an easy way to experiment with metallic touches. Copper fabric paint and a foam brush create an uneven edge and variegated effect. We combined Martha Stewart Crafts MultiSurface Copper Paint with an acrylic medium, such as Liquitex Slow-Dri Fluid Retarder.

Give hardworking burlap an opportunity to shine by lightly coating a scrap in metallic spray paint. Framing this piece will add drama to your walls. A white mat hides frayed edges, and a glass-free frame puts all the focus on the fabric's nubby texture.

Grit and Glitz

For this custom headboard, we installed leftover laminate flooring onto I/4-inch plywood cut to span the bed. The hardboard strips were cut to match the flooring pattern. We wrapped several of the strips in thin copper sheets, affixing with construction adhesive. A frame of white trim with miter-cut corners finishes the piece, which is hung on the wall with a French cleat.

Copper Sheets

Spend some time in the plumbing aisle combining pipe and elbows (the curved pieces) to fashion a cubical table base. You can have your pipe cut at most home improvement stores, or do it yourself with a pipe cutter. We used the same laminate flooring and painted trim from the headboard project to fashion the tabletop, then connected the base and top with U clamps. TIP: If you want copper pipe to stay bright and shiny, finish it to stop oxidation. Scratch the metal with emery paper, then seal it with spray polyurethane.

Easy Glowing Copper Candleholder

Use copper tape to create a beautiful coppery hurricane.

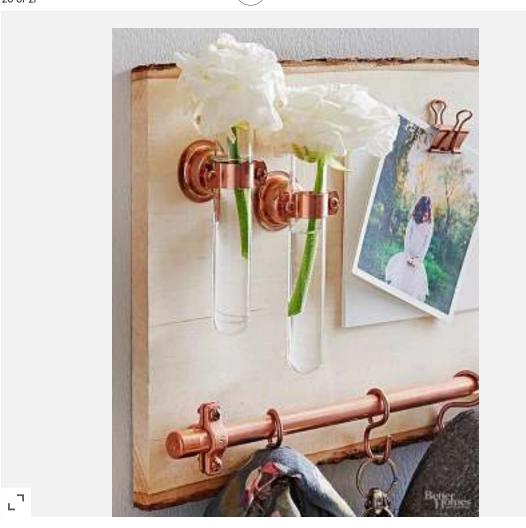

We traced a pretty profile onto a thin sheet of copper using a fine-point permanent marker, then cut out the image using detail scissors. Sketch a floral background on thick crafts paper with a metallic paint pen (we used a Sharpie in Bronze), and attach your head-turning likeness with construction adhesive. Mat and frame for a finished look.

Invite guests into your home with metallic accents in your entry. Hardware, artwork, furniture, and more can be the perfect spots for a pop of copper. Add warm colors like jade and blush to complete the look.

Jackets, bags, and flowers need a pretty home, so we made this entry butler from an $II \times I6$ -inch wood slice and an array of hardware and office store standards. The copper pieces function as clamps for test tube vases and a hanging bar outfitted with S hooks.
