Coda is a cloud-based document editor founded by Shishir Mehrotra and Alex DeNeui. Offices are located in Seattle, San Francisco, and Mountain View. The first software version 1.0 was launched in May 2019. Previously, for more than four years it had been in a closed beta version.^[1]

The software provides word-processing, spreadsheet, and database functions.^[2] It's a canvas that blends spreadsheets, presentations, apps, and documents together. The software can integrate with third-party services like Slack and Gmail.^[3] In 2017 Coda raised $60 million.^[4] Greylock Partners, Khosla Ventures, and General Catalyst participated in the financing, with LinkedIn co-founder Reid Hoffman and General Catalyst's Hemant Taneja joining the board of directors.^[5]
